Targets on Poland.

OBJECTIVE

All targets listed below are sought under objective II d. of DCID 4/6, dated 30 October 1956:

"The strengths and weaknesses of the Soviet (including Satellite) economy, with particular reference to its ability to support a major war; the motivation, character and magnitude of current economic development programs, their implementation and their effect upon the economic, political, and military strength of the Soviet Bloc; the capabilities and vulnerabilities of the Soviet and Satellite internal communications systems."

BACKGROUND

Polish foreign trade is undergoing a period of reorganization and re-direction. Since the inception of the Gomulka regime, a commission for the Reorganization of Foreign Trade has been established and both the Ministry of Foreign Trade and the Polish Chamber of Foreign Trade have been reorganized.

Although Polish economic ties with Bloc countries continue to be of great importance, trade with Western countries continues to increase both relatively and absolutely. Detailed plans for the future geographic distribution of Polish foreign trade, which are at present unknown, constitute an urgent priority.

More information is currently available on Polish foreign trade than at any time in the postwar period; nevertheless there are many areas of knowledge where priority targets remain to be filled. Detailed information on the relationship between internal and foreign trade prices, the amount of Polish indebtedness to Bloc and Western countries (and payments on that indebtedness), details of future foreign trade plans, and comprehensive comparisons of export and import prices of various commodities are not currently available.

SUBJECT: [REDACTED] Targets on Poland.

For example, because the internal price system is insulated from foreign influences, the price at which a foreign trade monopoly purchases an export commodity from the producing enterprise is typically much higher than the price it receives (when converted into zlotys at the official exchange rate) from a foreign buyer. The difference, a price equalization payment or subsidy, is made up from the budget. We do not know which agency in Poland pays these subsidies and collects gains resulting from import price differentials). There may be a special "price-equalization fund" as there is in GDR and Hungary, or the Ministry of Finance or National Bank may do the job. An annual report, showing the zloty price of exports, the ruble receipts from the same exports, and the subsidy paid by commodity group and by country -- and the same information, mutatis mutandis, for imports -- is a priority target.

INDIVIDUAL TARGETS

A. Strengths and Weaknesses of the Economy.

Basis Guidance

Volume and character of foreign trade; commercial relations with bloc and non-bloc countries; copies of Polish trade agreements or protocols with the Bloc countries containing details as to commodities, prices and payments arrangements; any classified copies of the current Five-Year or of any annual foreign trade plans.

Detailed data on foreign trade prices, giving quantities, values and countries of origin or destination for commodities; detailed information on the relationship between internal and foreign trade prices, including the existence and operation of a price equalization fund; Polish indebtedness to Bloc and non-Bloc countries; Poland's foreign exchange and gold position, especially availability thereof for use in purchasing imports.
